Day & Night

ABOUT

Hekta is a personal, experimental project of Arnaud Milliquet (ATMA World) and Nazareno Crea. This typeface provides a variation of styles in two weights. Every letter has its own respective alternate, sometimes inverting the contrast of thickness, sometimes reinventing its shape. The name derives from the Greek prefix "hekatón" (a hundred), hinting to the methodology applied in the design of this typeface where units of a hundred are alternatively subtracted or added to a fixed stroke to generate one design or its opposite.

Parametric, Limitation, Axial, Legibility, Experimental,
Cryptic, Ænigmatic, Geometry,
Alternate, Transcendental,
Kaleidoscopic, Hyperbolic,
Yin-Yang, Elemental, Difference,
Divergence, Contradiction, Incongruity, Yo-yo, Opposition, Puzzling, Unfathomable, Deep, Exo-Oceanic, Nautical, Etc ...

This list of visual cues represent a secondary intuitive definition of the typeface. Like in a semantic field, they aim to generate an evocative aesthetic realm in the viewers' mind.

20 points In the future, sexual intercourse and reproduction are prohibited, whereas use of mind-altering drugs is mandatory to enforce compliance among the citizens and to ensure their ability to conduct dangerous and demanding tasks. Emotions

14 points and the concept of family are taboo. Workers are clad in identical white uniforms and have shaven heads to emphasize uniformity, likewise with police androids who wear black and monks who are robed. Instead of names, people have designations with three arbitrary letters (referred to as the “prefix”) and four digits, shown on an identity badge worn at all times. At their jobs in central video control centers, SEN 5241 and LUH 3417 keep surveillance on the city. LUH has

10 points a male roommate, THX 1138, who works in a factory producing android police officers. At the beginning of the story, THX finishes his shift while the loudspeakers urge the workers to “increase safety”—and congratulate them for only losing 195 workers in the last period—to the competing factory’s 242.

On the way home, he stops at a confession booth in a row of many, and relates his concerns and mumbles prayers about “party” and “masses”, under the Jesus Christ-esque portrait of “OMM 0000”. A soothing voice greets THX, and OMM ends the confession with a parting salutation: “You are a true believer, 6 points blessings of the State, blessings of the masses. Work hard, increase production, prevent accidents and be happy.” At home, THX takes his drugs and watches holobroadcasts while engaging with a masturbatory device. LUH secretly substitutes pills in her possession for THX’s medications, causing him to develop nausea, anxiety, and sexual desires. LUH and THX become involved romantically and have sex. THX later is confronted by SEN, who attempts to arrange that THX become his new roommate, but THX files a complaint against SEN for the illegal shift pattern change. Without drugs in his system, THX falters during a critical and hazardous phase of his job, and a control center engages a “mind lock” on THX which raises the level of danger. After the release of the mind lock, THX makes the necessary correction to that work phase. THX and LUH are arrested and THX undergoes drug therapy, and one of his kidneys is removed for donation purposes. He enjoys a brief reunion with

LUH, disrupted shortly after she reveals her pregnancy. At THX’s trial, it is stated that THX was clinically born. It is decided that it would be inefficient to terminate THX, so THX is sentenced to prison, alongside SEN. The prison appears to be an all white space with no walls. One of the prisoners is a “shell dweller”, later called a

20 points On July 16, 1988, the third world war is triggered by the sudden destruction of Tokyo. The metropolis has been rebuilt as Neo-Tokyo on artificial islands in Tokyo Bay. In 2019, the city is plagued by corruption, anti-government protests, terrorism, and gang

14 points violence, causing martial law to try and uphold the peace. During a violent protest, the hot-headed Shōtarō Kaneda leads his vigilante bōsōzoku gang, the Capsules, against their rival biker gang, the Clowns. Kaneda's best friend Tetsuo Shima inadvertently crashes his motorcycle into Takashi, an ESPer who escaped from a government laboratory with the aid of a resistance organization. Assisted by fellow ESPer Masaru, Japan Self-Defense Forces Colonel Shikishima

10 points recaptures Takashi, takes Tetsuo away, and arrests the Capsules. While being interrogated by the police, Kaneda meets Kei, an activist within the resistance movement, and tricks the authorities into releasing her with his gang. Kei is pardoned, but the Capsules are sent to reform school as punishment. At a secret government facility, Shikishima and his head of research Doctor Onishi discover that Tetsuo possesses powerful psychic abilities similar to Akira, the ESPer responsible for the singularity that destroyed Tokyo in 1988. ESPer Kiyoko forewarns Shikishima of Neo-Tokyo's impending destruction, but the city council dismisses the Colonel's concerns, leading him to consider killing Tetsuo to 6 points to prevent another cataclysm. Meanwhile, Tetsuo escapes from the hospital, steals Kaneda's motorcycle, and prepares to run away from Neo-Tokyo with his girlfriend Kaori, but they are ambushed by the Clowns. The Capsules save Tetsuo and Kaori, but Tetsuo begins suffering intense headaches and hallucinations and is taken back to the hospital. After overhearing their plan to rescue Tetsuo and the other ESPers, Kaneda joins Kei's resistance cell. At the hospital, the ESPers try to kill Tetsuo via hallucinations, but the attempt is thwarted. Discovering his telekinetic abilities, Tetsuo searches for the ESPers in a fit of rage, easily killing any orderlies and militiamen blocking his path. The resistance group infiltrates the hospital, and Kiyoko draws Kei and Kaneda into the ESPers' futile attempts to stop Tetsuo. Kiyoko tells Tetsuo that Akira, located in cryonic storage beneath the Olympic Stadium's construction site, could help Tetsuo with his powers. After rejecting everyone around him, especially Kaneda, Tetsuo escapes the hospital to start his hunt for Akira. Kei, used by Kiyoko as a medium to stop Tetsuo, breaks her and Kaneda out of military custody. Colonel Shikishima stages a coup d'état against Neo-Tokyo's government and directs all of its military forces to destroy Tetsuo at any cost. At the Cap-
